The City Nominations.

The action of the convention on Monday evening meets with general approval so far as we have been able to learn. Of course some complaint is always expected to be made because certain names are put on the list, and other certain are left off, but if we waited for nominations which in all respects would suit every body, we should probably be obliged to postpone elections till humanity put on immortality and wanted no offices, unless they were such as ghosts might fill. While admitting that there may be some plausible objections to particular individuals, we think as a whole, that it is rather cause for surprise that the convention, crowded and informal as it was, did so well. To Mr. Failing, as candidate for the chief office, there can be no good cause of opposition. He is thoroughly conversant with our municipal affairs, is fully competent, and has a reputation for unblemished integrity. Such a man can, if elected, be be assure to be, accomplish at this time a vast amount of good, and we have no doubt that under his administration our municipal affairs will be in all respects greatly improved. Of the other candidates, we need not make special mention: they do not require our recommendation, as they are known and appreciated. The ward nominations will take place on Friday evening. Let all concerned (and who is not?) see to it that good and faithful men are put forward. The notice in our advertising columns suggests some modifications of the general ticket, and names candidates for the Council. The voters can judge how they like it, and certainly it cannot be denied that it suggests several citizens of eminent worth, whose service if rendered, could not fail to be of great benefit to the city.

Bad for Little Mac.

Some of the Peace Democrats, who are sincere in their opposition to the war and in their sympathy with the rebellion, say that they can never support Gen. McClellan. They have been examining his record, and to their infinite amazement and disgust, have discovered that in 1862, in conjunction with Gen. Banks, he organized a wicked and lawless military raid against the Democratic members of the Maryland Legislature, and actually consigned a majority of them to the tender mercies of Fort Lafayette and Fort Warren where they languished for many long and weary months—innocent victims of the brutal rage of the man,—then Lincoln's Commanding General, who is now proposed as a Democratic candidate for the Presidency. This won't suit the champions of the eternal principles of personal liberty. This grave offence is unpardonable in their eyes, and no good Democrat can excuse or justify it.

If McClellan should be nominated, we want no better document to secure the refusal of Peace men to give him their support, than the orders which he gave in the Maryland matters. We have them, and will cheerfully publish them for the benefit of our Democratic readers. We think, moreover, that at the time they were given, they were the right things at the right time, but they caused a terrible and universal howling among Democrats, as we presume they always will among men who are opposed to the Government.

THE WORK OF NORTHERN TRAITORS.—The recent destruction of Colt's immense armory establishment at Hartford, has been mentioned in our columns, and we now learn from late Connecticut papers, that the conflagration is supposed to have been the work of traitors, who had access to the building. It is stated that the factory has had in its employ disloyal men, open rebel sympathizers. We believe that such a man, if not a rebel sent to the armory for the purpose, an emissary of Jeff. Davis, did this deed. The burning of boats on the Mississippi, acknowledged to be by Jeff.'s agents; the repeated firing of government vessels in process of construction in Boston, and other well known cases of incendiarism, leave no room for doubt that the rebels have their emissaries and burners all over the north. And there is not a building in the States that they would be more likely to burn, if they had a chance, than Colt's Armory.

SETTLED AT LAST.—J. R. McBride, member of Congress from Oregon, has made an able Union speech in Congress, and fixed his political status. We are pleased to see that Oregon has at last obtained a loyal representative.

So says the Marysville Appeal, and so will respond every loyal man among McBride's constituents. He ought not in any respect to fall behind any one in Congress in hearty, entire and unselfish devotion to the cause of the Union, and in advocating with all his strength and his votes, every measure tending to crush the rebellion and to remove forever its unholy cause. If he does less than this, he will be untrue to his voluntary pledges, and will grievously disappoint and mortify the expectations of the patriotic people of Oregon.

From Boise.

Mr. West, of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express, brought us last evening a copy of the Boise News of March 19th—ten days from date. There is little news of importance. Every thing betokens prosperity. Winter was rapidly passing away and the singing of the spring birds was beginning to be heard. We copy its report of intelligence from Beaver Head:

Mr. J. Zumwalt, who arrived here on Friday night 11th inst., furnished us the following: He and a party of several others left the Missouri river on the 25th of January, and came over the East Bannack and Salt Lake road, until after they passed over the Rocky Mountains, when they turned off, leaving Fort Hall to their left, and came in by way of Boise city. J. M. Thurmond, formerly of this city, came with them as far as the forks of the road, when he and some others kept on to Salt Lake. The Vigilance Committee was still at work in the Beaver Head country when Mr. Zumwalt left; they had hung 24, and were after some others who, if caught, it was thought would fare badly; and that then the Committee would desist until further occasion for their services should transpire. The names of those already executed, are a follows:

At Virginia City—Geo. Ives, "Red," Jack Gallagher, Brown, Reed, Geo. Lane alias Clubfoot, Haze Lyons, Boon Helm, and Frank Parrish.

Bannack—Henry Plummer, (Sheriff,) John Wagner alias Dutch John, Buck Stinson, Spanish Frank and ——— Keavos.

At Big Hole—Stephen Marston.

Deer Lodge—Bill Bunton.

Bitter Root—Alex. Carter, Bob Zaerce, Bill Graves, John Cooper, Bill Hunter, Skinner and George Shears.

This is what we call doing the thing with a vengeance. The San Francisco Vigilance Committee is entirely eclipsed and overshadowed by the Beaver Head institution. Mr. Thurmond in his capacity of Attorney, had undertaken to defend Geo. Ives, before the Committee, and the boys tell a good joke in connection with the matter. Thurmon was unsuccessful and failed to acquit his client, whereupon he lost all respect for the tribunal and expressed his contempt for the members of that and all similar courts, in no gentle terms; the result of which was a notice to leave the place within fifteen minutes. Thurmon replied that, "if his mule didn't take the studs, he wouldn't ask but five," and immediately mounted his beast and departed for the modern Canaan where, under the benignant rule of Brigham, Vigilance committees are unknown, and no such summary notices to quit are tolerated. Other attorneys were required to pack up and leave in consequence of their opposition to the Committee; their names we have not learned. It is stated that one thousand men constitute the organization, and that it is so perfect that some of their detectives are stationed at every mining camp in the whole district east of the mountains, so that when they once commenced in earnest, they had the means—and put them in execution—of thoroughly "cleansing the Augean Stables." On the other hand, the ruffians, thieves and murderers were hardly less thoroughly organized. The Sheriff of the county being the leader of the band, could of course prevent the administration of justice in any case where his Confederates were interested. On his person when arrested, were found papers relating to their operations, and the names of some eighty of their number.

The Grand Jury of Boise county returned 12 indictments for murder, 16 for assault with intent to kill, and one for manslaughter.

News was received in town on Saturday that the Indians had been committing depredations on Snake river. They were armed with shot-guns and rifles, and are supposed to have been Cayuses.

The supper in honor of St. Patrick's day, at the Irving House, on Thursday evening, 17th inst., was very largely attended, and was indeed a splendid ovation.

On the 4th of next month an election will be held for the purpose of determining whether our city shall be incorporated or not; also to elect municipal officers to act under the charter in case it is adopted.

The ditch conveying water from Elk Creek to Buena Vista bar, has the water running in it, and we observed a party of men busy clearing up the earth, on the Bar a day or two since, by its means.

On Tuesday and Wednesday the snow disappeared more rapidly than on any previous days during the season, and the frost seems to be leaving the ground very fast.

Conway, Vance & Co., have started a line of stages from Boise city to Owyhee mines. They leave Boise city every Tuesday morning.

The Indians stole two horses from Mr. Hillhouse of the Owhyee Express, at a ranch, nine miles this side of Boonville, on Monday night.

OUR FINANCIAL BASIS AND PROSPECTS.—A circular has been addressed to the banks which have started on the new national plan, by Mr. McCollough, the Controller of the Currency, which merits attention. This officer of the Treasury is competent to speak on the vital question of our finances, and of course he can have no motive to excite a needless caution. Any considerate person must see that his suggestions are wise and timely. The advice which he gives is equally applicable to all business affairs, and to personal expenditures and management of property, as to banking institutions. He says:

Bear constantly in mind, although the loyal States appear superficially to be in a prosperous condition, that such is not the fact. That while the Government is engaged in the suppression of a rebellion of unexampled fierceness and magnitude, and is constantly draining the country of its laboring and producing population, and diverting its mechanical industry from works of permanent value to the construction of implements of warfare; while cities are crowded, and the country is to the same extent depleted, and waste and extravagance prevail as they never before prevailed in the United States, the nation, whatever may be the external indications, is not prospering. The war in which we are involved is a stern necessity, and must be prosecuted for the preservation of the Government, no matter what may be its cost; but the country will unquestionably be the poorer every day it is continued. The seeming prosperity of the loyal States is owing mainly to the large expenditures of the Government and the redundant currency which these expenditures seem to render necessary. Keep these facts constantly in mind, and manage the affairs of your respective banks with a perfect consciousness that the apparent prosperity of the country will be proved to be unreal when the war is closed, if not before, and be prepared, by careful management of the trust committed to you, to help to save the nation from a financial collapse, instead of lending your influence to make it more certain and more severe.

BUTLER'S MODE OF SETTLING A DISPUTED POINT.—There is always sufficient spiciness in General Butler's various military correspondence to ensure their being read by everybody, being entirely free from the usual dryness of formulary expression. Even the victims of his wit must be obliged to smile occasionally. In Norfolk there is a society called "Perfectionists," and in their behalf some ten or twelve of this number have lately addressed a letter to the commanding general of that department, setting forth objections to swearing allegiance to any earthly government. The subject was disposed of by General Butler in the following characteristic manner:

HEADQUARTERS OF ARMY CORPS,
FORT MONROE, Va., Jan. 13, '63.

J. F. Dozier, E. H. Beasly and 2 others:—GENTLEMEN—I have read your petition to Gen. Barnes, setting forth your objection to swearing allegiance to any earthly government.

The first reason which you set forth is that all human governments are a necessary evil, and are continued in existence only by permission of Jehovah until the time arrives for the establishment of his kingdom, and in the establishment of which, all others will be subdued unto it, thus following that declaration in the 8th of Daniel and 14th verse, &c.

You then go on to establish to your own satisfaction three points:

1st—That government, although an evil, is a necessary one.

2d—That for a time it is permitted to exist by the wisdom of Jehovah.

3d—That the time at which a period is to be put to its existence is not come.

Therefore you ought to swear allegiance to the Government of the United States:

1st—Because though an evil you admit it to be necessary.

2d—Although an evil you admit that it is permitted by the wisdom of Jehovah, and that it is not for His creatures to question the wisdom of His acts.

3d—You only claim to be excused when Jehovah's government is substituted, which period you admit, has never arrived.

Your obedient servant,
B. F. BUTLER.

HONEST PATRIOTISM.—A correspondent of the Yreka Journal, writing from this city, gives the following account of a conversation to which he listened:

"On board the steamer that plies between Salem and Canemeh, I saw two respectable-looking individuals approach each other—both, seemingly, had passed the meridian of life—they soon entered upon an animated conversation, from which I learned that they were farmers, residing in adjoining counties in the upper end of the valley. As the conversation wore on, one of the parties with true Yankee inquisitiveness, asked the other from what part of the country he hailed, at the same time remarking that he was from the State of New Hampshire. The party addressed replied that he came from North Carolina. Whereupon our Northern Copperhead, with that obsequiousness characteristic of a Northern doughface, commenced commiserating him upon the unhappy and desolate condition of his country, and wound up by denouncing Lincoln and his Abolition hirelings. 'Yes,' replied the old patriot, 'I confess that my country is in a pitiable condition, but I have the consolation of knowing that her enemies are in a far worse condition, and that this cruel war must soon terminate in an honorable peace.' Doughface, thinking his game secure, again commenced abusing the Government, dilating upon ruinous taxation, negro equality, a divided North and united South, and concluded by saying that he hoped Horatio Seymour would be next President. The spirit of the old patriot was now fully aroused, and looking the Copperhead full in the face, he answered,—'Sir, the Government of the United States is my friend, and its enemies are my enemies. I was born and raised in a slave State; I was taught that slavery was a divine institution; the most of my relatives are slaveholders;—but what did that profit me? It brought me neither land nor niggers. The Government has been my friend. It gave me six hundred and forty acres of the best land in Oregon, and protected me from Indian outrages. If not rich, I have acquired a competency, such as I never could have done among my slaveholding friends of North Carolina; and I, sir, am proud to stand by my friends. I go for Old Abe. If this was not sound philosophy, then I have never learned what those words comprehend."

LIGHT BREAKING.—Democratic papers seem at last to recognize the fact, that the restoration of the Union and the Abolition of Slavery are identical. One of them, ridiculing the reported growth of Union sentiment at the South, says "that to go over to the Union side now in the Confederate States, is simply to become an Abolitionist." There is a good deal of truth in that, and as soon as the Democratic party generally admit it, one great obstacle to the restoration of the Union will be removed. The blindness and perversity of that transpanable organization is, at present, the one great stumbling block.

NEW POSTAL ARRANGEMENTS.—The P. M. General has ordered that in future the international postage charge upon all letters between Canada and any part of the United States, shall be ten cents the single rate of half an ounce and under, the prepayment optional, without regard to difference of distance on the route of conveyance.

GENERAL GRANT.—General Howard says that General Grant is a strictly temperate man, and religious. His marked characteristic is a wonderful faith in his success, amounting almost to the fatality in which Napoleon so strongly believed.

THE AGE OF ENDURANCE.—A writer in the Washington Chronicle says that the greatest power of endurance of such hardships as belong to a soldier's life belong to men over thirty-five years of age; that men from eighteen to thirty are ten times on the sick list where those older are only once; that the records of the hospitals around Washington develop the fact that aside from surgical cases, the patients there under thirty-five are as forty to one over that age; consequently a sound man of forty, and of temperate habits, will endure more fatigue and bad treatment than one equally sound at the age of twenty.

GREEK FIRE A HUMBUG.—Gen. Seymour, writing from Morris Island, says that Greek fire is only one of the numerous humbugs of the day, and that not a shell containing it, is known to have entered Charleston. On the contrary, it has been a complete failure, from the premature explosion caused by its use.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE DAILY OREGONIAN.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 29.—The Overland line is not working to-day.

A fire this morning partially destroyed the frame buildings in Fourth street, numbers 21 and 23.

Horace Gale, an old citizen, died suddenly to-day.

The Steamer Golden Age, with New York paper mails and passengers, arrived at 6 o'clock this evening. She left New York on the 26 inst.

The ship Portsmouth, which had arrived at Acapulco is reported as having seen a suspicious steamer reconnoitering fifteen miles south of the entrance of that harbor. It is not likely to have been a French vessel as she was too far south. There are many surmises as to her character and objects. It is understood that the United States war vessels now in those waters are to be ordered to the Gulf of California.

The officers of the revenue cutter Shubrick have received their commissions as officers of a new steam revenue cutter—first class—now on her way from the east.

The steamer J. L. Stephens is to be held on the Mexican coast route.

The bark Smyrniote, 14 days from Honolulu, has arrived; also, schooner Ospray, 28 days from Manzanillan.

Honolulu advices say, a meeting was held March 7th, and that necessary steps were taken to organize a Planter's Society for the cultivation of sugar cane, cotton, Coffee, Rice, Tobacco, etc.

The Pacific and San Francisco Sugar Refinery has reduced the price of crushed sugar to 14½; yellow do. 12½ cts. per pound.

More rain fell in various portions of the State last night and this morning.

Markets for flour and grain dull. Isthmus butter, firm at 43@45 cts. Stock, extremely light. Bags and bagging in demand at increased rates. Legal tenders, heavy at 61@62.

THE RAILROAD SURVEY.—Mr. Barry has been spending some time among the people on the west side of the river, and in looking over the country between Corvallis and Portland for an available railroad route. The result of his observations is the conclusion that almost a direct line between those two points can be located, with very light grades, and only a very few bridges to construct. He will soon organize a party for the purpose of making an accurate survey. We learn that the people of that side of the river offer much more liberal inducements to the work than could be obtained on the east side. The distance from Corvallis to Portland by way of the newly proposed route, is much less than that by the way of Salem and Oregon City. It is not impossible that if stock be freely taken on that side, as we hear it will be, the location will be made there, and thus, by their illiberality, the people of Linn, Marion and Clackamas will lose for themselves the main benefits of the road. Sometime or other, a road will be built from Portland, to at least the head of the valley, and its eventual location will depend more or less upon the present action of the parties connected with the survey of the Californin and Columbia river road. The people of the east side of the river, if they would consult their own interests, should not permit the location to go by default elsewhere.—Statesman.

THE AMERICA EAGLE.—The following incident is related in a recent lecture by Rev. A. L. Stone, pastor of Park Street Church, Boston:

In the early part of the war, there stood on Shackleford Island, a high flagstaff, from which floated the national banner. Of course, the secessionists soon tore this down. But there still surmounted the staff, the national eagle. This was too loyal for the traitors, and after a time they succeeded in getting it down or breaking it off. Their work was hardly finished, when lo! the air quivered with the rush of lordly wings, and a majestic eagle swept down and lighted on the staff. In a few moments the marksmen sent bullet after bullet at the royal mark. In vain. His piercing eye looked at them defiant; he rose, circled around a few feet, and settled again on his perch. At length, struck with awe, they ceased to fire, and soon the imperial bird, soaring upward a hundred feet higher, lighted on the top of a lofty pine. The symbol of liberty may be desecrated and profaned; liberty itself may be the target of treason's aim, but above the smoke, and the din, the strife and hate, she will soar unharmed with a broader sweep, and up to a lordlier height in the serene blue of heaven.

LANGUISHING IN HOSPITALS.—Recent statistical reports show that there are in the various military hospitals of the country beds provided for 58,213 persons, of which 42,780 are now occupied by sick and wounded men. Of this number, 11,952 beds are in the hospitals in and around Washington, of which 4,940 beds are now occupied, and 7,012 are vacant. This, of course, does not include the army hospitals within the lines; how large an army of the sick and wounded are languishing upon beds of pain? It is, however, encouraging to know that much of their great sum of suffering is alleviated by the ministrations of the Heaven-born Sanitary Commission.

THE STOMACH QUESTION IN RICHMOND.—The Richmond Examiner of the 5th February says:

"The quantity of meats in the market for several days past has not been sufficient to supply one-tenth of the demand. The hotel proprietors especially, have been put to their 'trumps' in their daily efforts to obtain enough to supply their tables. The anticipated passage, by the Legislature, of the bill to prevent the slaughter of sheep and lambs for food, has thrown a great deal of mutton upon the market, as butchers possessing these animals are taking time by the forelock and preparing their meat for market before the measure can become a law. Between the great scarcity of beef, the high price of pork, and the prohibition of mutton, the community is likely to enjoy a season of unhallowed lent. Some of the heretofore leading cafes on Main street are about closing their doors against meal boarders, because, as the proprietors allege, the price of every article of food is so high that they cannot afford to feed them, with any profit to themselves, no matter how much they charge. We suspect the real cause is a plethora of Confederate notes; they have as many as they can conveniently bale and pack away. The accommodation of the public is nothing with them.

THE FENIANS.—The Fenians resent the attack of the Catholic Bishops, and say they are not a secret society, and have no oath and grips. In the United States, the Fenian Brotherhood numbers fifty thousand, and in Canada and Ireland one hundred and fifty thousand. What they mean to do is not decided. The first thing seems to be to unite the Irishmen, and imbue them with one sentiment.

Calico Dress Ball.—A Calico Dress Ball will be given by the Ladies of the Vancouver Sanitary Aid Society, on Friday, April 1st, at the Military Hall, Vancouver Barracks. Admission, including Refreshments, $3. Ice Cream Extra.

PRACTICAL JOKES.—There is no body but can appreciate a good joke, when it is applied in season, and we have one to the point, which occurred in this city on Monday, during the severe rain storms of that day. A well-to-do San Francisco merchant and his wife, had arrived on Sunday's steamer, and were stopping at one of our principal hotels, when on the day in question the husband ordered a large, long pair of gum-boots, a coarse overcoat, a mammoth umbrella, and a lantern, to be sent to his room. The articles were taken as directed, when the wife protested to the porter that there must be some mistake about it, but he was positive of being correct, and left the goods. Presently the lady's husband appeared, and she at once interrogated him in reference to the "coarse things," asking what he could have meant by purchasing such materials? when he replied: "Why, my dear, I thought of attending the Theatre this evening, and knew I should need them!" Some people form an idea that because it rains here one day, it rains always. Had these parties arrived a week previous they would have required sun-shades, instead of gum boots and overcoats, and had no fears of an earthquake, either.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN.—The play last night was admirably performed, and certainly deserved a better audience than was present. Mrs. Leighton as Topsy, was just exactly the representative of the character, and gave complete satisfaction, as was abundantly proved by the hearty shouts which greeted her excellent points. She does not overact the part, as most of the Topsie's are apt to do, but is just the natural, unsophisticated and "wicked nig" that she professes to be. In all respects, the performance was well got up, and well sustained, and the sincere applause that often greeted philanthropic sentiments, showed that the mind of play goers in Portland, responds much more cheerfully to ideas formerly denounced as abolition, than was once the case. All right—the world moves—so long as it goes in the right direction we are contented, and can take lessons of freedom from the theatre as well as from "any other man!"

ASSAYS OF ROCK.—Specimens of quartz rock, brought from the Oro Fino lode, in Owyhee by Mr. Power, to Mr. J. B. Price of this city, has been assayed by Goldsmith Bros., and shows a total value per ton of $3,262 50, the proportion being: of gold $2,945 71, of silver $316 60. This may be taken rather as under, than over the average of the lode. The "discovery claim" owners have sunk a shaft about 25 feet in the Oro Fino, and are so highly gratified at the prospects that they refuse all offers, tending to a purchase of their interest. A published list shows ninety-three lodes, now discovered in the Owyhee mines.

LECTURE BY A LADY.—We learn that Mrs. Sallie B. Thayer, lately from San Francisco, will deliver an address in this city, during the present week, on "the duties of woman to the country, in the existing crisis." She is an interesting and eloquent speaker, and the lecture which has been given in other places has uniformly been received with great approbation. We hope that she will be greated by a full house, and we are sure from what we have heard of the fair orator's success elsewhere, that her hearers will not fail to be pleased and edified.

DEPARTURE OF THE SIERRA NEVADA.—The steamship Sierra Nevada, left this port at six o'clock last evening, for Victoria and San Francisco, carrying away $88,000 in treasure, Wells, Fargo & Co. shipping $58,000, and about $30,000 appearing on her manifest from other parties. Her freight for San Francisco was very light, but the list for Victoria shows a large consignment of bacon, apples, and other articles of Oregon production.

GOOD STAGING.—The stages of Messrs. Thomas & Greathouse, between Idaho City and Walla Walla made the distance in three days and a half, on the first trip of the season, last week. The express matter for that country will hereafter be carried in coaches. Thus step by step the "great plains" are being reduced by stations to mere nothing, and a ride to the Missouri will soon be a pleasure.

ISSUING STOCK.—As "stock" is becoming all the rage, and speculations in "feet" ahead of all other matters of a financial caste, the presses of the Farmer Job Office are kept busy "issuing" stock. The last is the "Gambrenus," a very pretty certificate.

STEAMER MARIA.—The steamer Maria was started toward the surface of the water yesterday, by means of a cylinder windlass, of great purchase, which was applied from a position alongside of the sunken steamer.

AUCTION SALE.—At the auction sale this morning of A. B. Richardson a splendid rosewood piano will be offered. We think this is a fine opportunity to obtain a good instrument cheap.

A BOISE EXPRESS.—Mr. West brought down for Wells, Fargo & Co. $50,000 in gold dust, and 2,500 letters, on the steamer Wilson G. Hunt, last evening.

THEATRICAL.—Julia Dean Hayne will soon appear at the Willamette Theatre, supported by Miss Frances R. Gase, Mr. S. B. Waldron and the star company.

THE "opposition" Ferry-boat has been laid up, to receive a boiler and engine, steam being preferable to muscle, when applied to crossing the Willamette on a windy day.

SENDING COIN BELOW.—The treasure of Messrs. Ladd & Tilton, per steamer last evening, amounted to $12,000, which sum was shipped in coin, owing to the scarcity of dust.

Written for the Oregonian.

Lines,

BY SALLIE D. THAYER.

In all this world—this wide world over,
Is there one human heart
That has not felt the bitter pangs
From all that's dear to part?
The human heart—how strange a thing
'Tis much it can pass through—
But oh! its fibres crack and bend,
When dear ones say adieu.

The heart! the heart!—'tis a fragile thing!
Yet like the tender flower,
It opes its leaves and blooms afresh
When passed sorrow's hour.
When first I left my home and friends,
I felt my heart would break,
'Twas swelled and strained with grief and pain,
The parting hand to take.

My brothers stood by the cottage gate,
Their heads in grief were bent,
They took my hand in theirs, and blessed
Their sister as she went.
My father drew me to his side
And knelt with me in prayer,
The hot tears streamed adown his cheek;
I left him weeping there.

'Twas duty's sternly commanding call
Bade me the good bye say,
I kissed the dear ones as I left,
And dashed the tears away.
Time has a little soothed my grief—
Yet oft a tear will come,
As I sit and think of the dear ones, far
Beyond the ocean's foam.

I know they're thinking now of me—
Are praying for me too;
"Oh, God protect our idol dear
And keep her pure and true"—
Is, I am sure, the boon they crave,
Is now their earnest prayer;—
May Heaven in mercy grant their wish—
Nor let one sin ensnare!

My father dear, I'm thinking now
Of thee, and all thy love;
Think'st thou thy child can e'er forget
Wherever she may rove,
Thy kindness, goodness and thy truth,
Thy tenderness and care,
The days and months and years thou'st spent
In watchfulness and prayer—

To God,—thy friend and hope on high,
That He would well provide
Thy heart with strength, and teach thee how
My infant steps to guide.
I bless the all-wise hand above,
That pointed out the way,
By which,—despite of storms and clouds,
I've reached this happy day!

My father dear as now I trace,
The links in memory's chain,
Old time his course doth backward turn,
And I'm a child again!
A free and gay and giddy girl,
I laugh and skip and sing,
And feel o'en happier than I did
In life's first budding spring—

When all the storms and clouds of life,
To me were April showers;
When every path my footsteps trod,
Was strewed with fragrant flowers,
When loved ones lingered ever 'round,
To grant each childish whim,—
To fill life's goblet up with sweets
And wreathe in flowers its brim.

The recollection of those days
Is pleasant to the mind;—
Yet oft the heart unbidden sighs
For joys its left behind.
And while I ponder on the past,
I see in memory's eye,
Those gay and happy scenes of youth—
Now flown forever by.

And in my eye there starts a tear
It rolls adown my cheek—
My heart's too full,—it overflows,
I can no longer speak.
So now, once more I'll say farewell,
My dear—my noble father,—
A sister's kiss, and blessing give
To each dear absent brother!

Yes now I bid you loved ones all,
Once more a fond adieu—
Think of me oft, and waft a kiss
Across the ocean's blue.
Whate'er my fate, where'er I roam
I'll pray each night and day,
That God may guide, and guard, and bless,
The loved ones far away.

Shipwreck in a Peninsular and Oriental Steamer.

The saloon was filled with the passengers, ladies especially, who were bent upon saving whatever valuables they had at hand. The tables were soon strewn with stray things that they were trying to dispose of about their persons—a rather difficult process by the way, as most of the ladies were in their toilette de nuit. One of them I noticed—and I dare say others did the same—went on deck in that condition, and began talking to one of the ship's officers about the chances of escape, as composedly as if she had been in full dress in a drawing-room. The ship's officers, who were making arrangements for the general good, would not, of course, be disturbed by particular appeals. It was the purser, I think, who gave his arm to the lady in question, and conducted her, with great gravity, back to her cabin. If I had been on the point of death—as, indeed, I believed I was—I could not have refrained from laughing at the curious appearance of the pair. The purser had on something like his usual complement of clothing; but the lady—well, it was the most ridiculous thing you ever beheld.

During all this time the other passengers had managed to array themselves more or less; but the less, I am afraid, was predominant over the more. Some had thrown wrappers over their night clothing—by far the safest plan. Others had attempted to dress themselves regularly, and being afraid to complete their toilettes, appeared in simple crinoline. Some had put on boots without stockings, others stockings without boots. A few appeared with one boot and one stocking; and one—her appearance was more absurd than any—had attired herself in very limited under garments, and a corset, which, half laced as it was, may be more easily imagined than described. Out of their cabins they came, some bent upon simply saving their lives; others determined that, come what might, they would rescue some proportion of the things that made life endurable. A few ladies had got their jewel-cases out into the saloon, and were making a selection of the articles they considered most valuable. One, I noticed, was very particular about a bracelet with hair in it, which she fastened upon her arm as carefully as if she were decorating herself for some festive occasion. Another evinced similar solicitude about a little locket, which she had some difficulty in finding among secret drawers. A third seemed to care for nothing but her marriage certificate, which she carefully placed in a purse, and hung about her neck. She seemed to think that if she was to be drowned, it was better to go out of the world with proper credentials.

The more mercenary were solicitous merely about money. "What shall I do with these notes?" said one. "Do, dear captain," this was to the captain of the ship, "take care of them for me."

"What a dreadful nuisance!" said another; "I forgot to change all these rupees in Calcutta, and the bag will sink me if I hang it round my neck."

"Here's a letter of credit upon Cutts's," said a third, who seemed to require a letter of credit upon an outfitter more than anything else, "who will cash it for me? I will give any per centage."

The latter offer was made in a voice of agony. My poor friend seemed to think that the price of securities was going up in the market when, in point of fact, it could not well be more down; but, however, that money was in a much better position for very few seemed to care about that.

One of those who did, received a characteristic rebuke from our Australian friend:—"What do you mean by taking your money?" said he; "you will never want it!"

And then he returned to the old chorus, which seemed to give him so much satisfaction, "We are all lost irretrievably lost!"

It was curious to see, by the way, how the neglected people were made use of at the crisis. There was one man who seemed to know nobody, and to whom nobody, I believe, had spoken. He was appealed to now as a confidential friend, and a lady gave him her child to carry—a charge which he considered so onerous that, as we afterwards found, he never attempted to save anything of his own, but lost all he possessed with a devotion worthy of a more profitable cause.

In the meantime the ship went rocking to and fro with more violence than ever, and as it seemed that no good came of remaining in the saloon, nearly everybody rushed upon deck—costumes to the contrary, notwithstanding; as I heard remarked by a flippant young attorney, who was too professional to believe in danger without conclusive evidence. And certainly our condition was such as well might provoke laughter. I have told you of the arrangements as to skirts, etc. The coiffures were, if possible, more ridiculous, and in respect of these, as indeed of all matters relating to the toilette, you might see personal character cropping out. Some ladies who had always appeared to have abundant hair, now presented themselves with half-bald heads, and dreadful objects they looked, it must be confessed; while others, whom we had never given credit for having much hair of their own, displayed themselves as nicely coiffé as ever—a transparent arrangement which deceived nobody. One lady, who had always been suspected of doing something to her complexion, and in particular of rouging, showed exactly the same as usual, and I have every reason to believe that she had spent twenty minutes upon her face even at this terrible crisis. It is certain that she had bestowed very little time upon any other department of adornment, for her wardrobe was so limited when she came upon deck, that a contribution was at once levied in her favor upon another passenger, who appeared in most unbecoming style as regarded her head, but with no less than three robes, one over the other. She must have surely dressed for the shipwreck before leaving Galle! Two or three of the ladies—I noticed only two or three—were completely costumed. They might have made a morning call in the attire which they wore on this short notice; and a few of the gentlemen were in equally good order. I suppose habit does a great deal for people in such cases.

Well, the rocking went on, and everything in the cabin was in the greatest state of confusion—all the cabin doors open, everybody rushing about in the diversified attire I have described, trying to save whatever property they could collect, with a view to ultimately saving themselves. But this proceeding was brought to a sudden close by an order from the captain for us all to go on deck. Everybody, of course, considered this to mean that we were going to pieces at once, so the things that had been collected were thrown down anywhere, and every lady went up, supported by the first gentleman who came to hand—or perhaps I might more properly say, to arm.

What a sight the deck presented, compared with its usual appearance at the same hour! Instead of freshly washed parquet, everything clean and in its place, and passengers, nicely dressed, having their promenade before breakfast, there were nothing but undecaliness, and confusion, haggard half-clothed wretches rushing about in despair, and the ship's company all talking at once as they set about their duty. What duty they were engaged in was soon apparent—they were lowering the boats.

Directly this was seen, there was a general rush at the unfortunate captain to be saved—at least on the part of the ladies.

Some merely asked for themselves: "Oh, do, dear captain, take me into a boat; oh, do take care of me!"

Others were more thoughtful for their husbands or children. "Oh, do, dear captain, think of my little boy; do not let him be left behind!" or, "Oh, make my Henry go into the first boat; if you don't, I know he will be waiting, and then there will be no room for him. You may leave me if you like." And so forth.

The poor captain was at his wit's end between them all. "My good ladies," said he, "we will get you all off, if you only have a little patience and be a little quiet. The boats shall take you in parties—ladies first, gentlemen afterwards. The shore, you see, is not far off."

The land was close upon us—indeed, not more than 300 yards distant. Oh! and it looked so green and pleasant, covered as it was with cocoa-nut trees; and we thought how happy the black people must be whom we saw crowding down to look at us. Nothing, surely, could be more delightful than to be at a place that there was no occasion to escape from.

The lowering of the boats was a work of great difficulty in consequence of the rocking of the ship, which, indeed, was so strong as to sweep the passengers, unless they clung to something very tightly, all to one side at every moment. Fortunately, I was very well provided for in my cavalier, Captain Skylark, who told me from the first that nothing worse would happen to us than the possible loss of our property; so that I made myself quite comfortable, and waited for things to develope.

The boats were all right at last, and the next work was to get into them. There was awful crowding for the first, in which I did not take part; for, as Capt. Skylark said, the second would do just as well, and there would not be the same rush and consequent chance of being swamped. It was quite impossible that the ladies could descend the ladder alone, so the captain simplified matters by carrying them down in his arms one after another. One boat full, another was brought alongside, and so on; and the ladies once disposed of, the gentlemen were accommodated, the whole in time getting safe off. The captain himself was the last to leave the ship. The business was managed very well—the only awkwardness being occasioned by two or three ladies having somebody else's babies instead of their own; and one lady, who had got the right baby, seeing its bottle, which she had given to a gentleman to hold, go into another boat.

Notwithstanding the miserable state we were all in, we could not help laughing at hearing such cries as "This is the wrong child they have given me; I don't want it, and won't have it!" Or, "Where's Capt. Tulwar and the baby's bottle?"

A miserable state we were in, to be sure. The surf was too heavy for oars, so the boats had to be pulled on shore by means of ropes—though how they got the other ends of the ropes on shore first, I cannot say. We had to stoop down in the boats in a most uncomfortable position, in order to let these ropes pass over heads; and as the sea did not pass over our heads at the same time, but drenched us very considerably, you may guess what a very pleasant journey we had. It soon came to an end, however. I had shut my eyes, and squeezed myself into as small a compass as possible, and was aroused only by the boat touching ground. But we were by no means in yet. There was another hundred yards of shallow sea to be traversed. I was just wondering if we were expected to wade through it, when a steward said to me: "Don't be particular, ma'am, jump on my back." So as it was of no use being particular, I wasn't, and was carried on shore very comfortably, the other ladies making the journey in the same way. It was a miracle that we all reached shore in safety; for one of the ropes broke, and the boat was hurled back against the ship. It was not our boat; but en revanche, we were as nearly swamped as could be.

However, there we all were at last, safe on land. All of us? Yes; nobody was missing. It was a curious sensation the time occupied in ascertaining the fact. The captain counted us over in regular order, but of course we could not be satisfied with that.

"Where is Emily?"

"I hope dear Mrs. Wavelet is with us?"

"Oh, yes, dear, here."

"I've not seen Miss Topaz yet; I do hope she is safe."

"Oh, yes, ma'am; she's over there, sitting on the sand, and wringing the water out of her hair."

"Oh, I'm so glad to see you again, Captain Tulwar; I was afraid you were lost, and had taken my baby's bottle with you."

Poor Captain Tulwar, by the way, was holding the bottle at arm's length, like an antique lamp, not knowing what to do with it.

"That is your baby, ma'am; and I'll thank you to give me mine."

"I have not the smallest desire to keep it, I can assure you; other people's babies are not such desirable possessions."

"Yes, this is mine; but it had a coral in its hand."

"Well, ma'am, I have not taken the coral, if you mean that."

"I have not seen that fat, bald-headed old gentleman we took on shore at Madras. I gave Julia to him to take care of."

"Oh, yes ma'am, he's here, and here's Julia; and you can take her back; she does n't seem to like me much; I suppose it's because I am fat and bald."

"Oh, I meant nothing, sir. Julia, why do you not thank the gentleman?"—From "The Inner Life of a Shipwreck," in Temple Bar Magazine.

"INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION,"

Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, but will not confess

THE RECORDS OF THE INSANE ASYLUM,
